An Interesting Review

The third annual review of the world grain market situation by United Grain Growers Limited, which was presented at the annual meeting of that body held recently in Saskatoon has just been published. As in previous years the review contains a concise summary of statistics relating to the world production of and world trade in wheat, and at the same time discusses various developments in the wheat situation. It is pointed out that there is still as there have been for several years, special circumstances connected with the supply of wheat, which would make fairly low prices inevitable. But the general depression which now for over three years has afflicted the world is considered even more important as a depressing factor in prices. This year's world production outside of Russia is expected to be practically the same as last year probably less than consumption would be under conditions which would permit a normal flow of trade and larger consumption of wheat in importing countries which have been kept very high by tariffs. Developments in the United States, in Russia, in Great Britain and in continental Europe, are discussed and the whole review will repay careful reading.

It is understood that a copy

To Halt Unemployed Marches

Definite action to prevent the rumored concentration of unemployed in the province in a march upon the capital at Edmonton is announced in a statement issued this week by Premier Brownlie. The statement points out that communistic literature has been circulated reiterating demands already made on governments, and the government expressed its opinion that the object is more the furtherance of communistic propaganda than the immediate solution of the unemployed problem. Canadian Pacific Welcomes Co-operation But Opposes Compulsory Arbitration

E. W. Beatty K. G., Chairman and President Makes Vigorous Protest Against Proposed Arbitral Board in Presenting Company's Case Before Senate Committee Considering Legislation to Implement Duff Report.

WELCOMING the suggestion of co-operation and voluntary agreement, but vigorously protesting against the proposed Arbitral Board and compulsory arbitration, E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President, Canadian Pacific Railway, recently stated in a letter to his company before the Senate Railway Committee, that the company is in favor of co-operation to implement recommendations made by the Royal Commission on Railways and transportation in Canada.

"The principle of co-operation is embodied in part III of the Bill," he stated. "The company must enter into the same spirit of co-operation as the most vigorous protest." Mr. Beatty declared.

"The company is in a position to be completely satisfied with the principle of co-operation," he continued, "but the company is not in a position to be completely satisfied with the principle of compulsory arbitration."

to extend to all disputes between the two companies. Probably this is incidental to the measures of co-operation enumerated in Section 19, but, in any case, it opens up a very wide field of jurisdiction.

"As to the Arbitral Board, it will be observed that whether they consist of three or five members, the Canadian Pacific is in every case to have a voice in the appointment of one member of the Board. In the last analysis, the company is in a position to be completely satisfied with the principle of co-operation, but the company is not in a position to be completely satisfied with the principle of compulsory arbitration."

used $70,000,000 Ordinary Capital Stock at an average premium of 12%, receiving therefor $32,000,000 all without expense to the Dominion, direct or indirect. At that average price, a dividend of 5% yields a return of only 1.53% to the shareholder in the investment. It is my submission to your Committee that the magnitude of their undertaking and its importance, to the country entitle them to consideration in any legislative measure affecting their control of their property. They have provided Canada with a transportation service and a means that is unequaled in the world, and there is no part of her territory, no place of her commercial life and welfare that is not touched by the operations of the company and concerned in the continued success of its enterprise. As the Royal Commission has said, the company is Canada's largest taxpayer. Its tax bill during the last ten years averaged more than $7,000,000 per annum, and since its incorporation it has paid up-ward of $116,000,000 in taxes. During the last fifteen years it has contributed to the Federal Treasury the sum of $25,500,000. As a citizen it has contributed its full share to institutions of a public nature for the benefit of the social and commercial welfare."

The company, he contended, has been the foremost factor in Canada in the work of colonization, immigration and development. As a war effort had been able to raise more than $100,000,000, and to furnish means of transportation for approximately 1,000,000 soldiers and 4,000,000 tons of war material.

Mr. Beatty referred to the consolidation of the Government railways ten years ago. The Canadian National had at once begun an active and aggressive campaign of competition backed by the credit and resources of the Government. To alter the situation arising out of that competition the Bill proposed the formation of a new Canadian National and the Canadian Pacific effect necessary economies.

"So far as the Canadian Pacific is concerned," he continued, "we would accept a statutory direction that we should co-operate with the company in the future. We are satisfied that a fair measure of co-operation can be achieved from three causes, first, the necessities of the situation; secondly, the statutory direction; and thirdly, that this should be a matter of policy by the private company, and, thirdly, because of the creation of a board of trustees to administer the company's carrying out the policy of Parliament in this respect.

"I observe in some of the addresses delivered in the Senate that the Royal Commission has been very severely criticized. Quite obviously, there is only one way in which the company's names are obtainable and that is in the case of the purpose of administration, whether for a limited number of years or for a long period of years, and no phase of her commercial life and welfare that is not touched by the operations of the company and concerned in the continued success of its enterprise. As the Royal Commission has said, the company is Canada's largest taxpayer. Its tax bill during the last ten years averaged more than $7,000,000 per annum, and since its incorporation it has paid up-ward of $116,000,000 in taxes. British-U. S. War Debts.

At the time this article is written, President Hoover and President-elect Roosevelt are in conference giving consideration to applications made by the British, French, and other Governments which are indebted to the United States for loans made by the latter during the war, for an extension of the one-year moratorium covering repayments granted last year, and generally for a revision of the terms of settlement of such debts.

Inasmuch as these enormous international war debts are admittedly one cause of the existing financial and economic depression affecting all nations, whether they are directly concerned as debtors or creditors or not, it is well that the general position in regard to these debts should be understood in its broad outlines.

The war debts of the nations of Europe to the United States total approximately $22,145,539,000, of which amount Great Britain owed $11,105,950,000, and has paid almost $2,000,000,000. France owed $6,857,674,000 and has paid $486,073,891. Italy owed $2,407,677,000 and has paid $97,584,422, with the smaller nations owing varying amounts. Repayment of these huge amounts were to be made during a period of approximately 60 years.

On the other hand, Germany was obligated to pay these allied European nations the sum of $26,377,000,000 during a like period of time. In other words, as Germany paid her debts to the Allies, they in turn could pay the United States. But Germany cannot pay; the whole world now recognizes that fact. So at the Lausanne Conference last June, Great Britain and the other nations agreed to let Germany off for $714,000,000 instead of $26,000,000,000, provided the United States would reduce or cancel the war debts due to that country. This the United States has thus far refused to do.

The Allies carried on the war against Germany for three years before the United States entered the conflict. Some of them had completely exhausted their credit in those three years and would have collapsed, the result of which might easily have been a German victory. They could not pay for their rescue. But while Great Britain could have continued to finance all her own stupendous war expenditures, she could not do so and at the same time finance her allies. So Great Britain borrowed from the United States and, in turn, asked the United States to cancel the debts of the Great Britain, nevertheless Great Britain is obligated to repay the United States, and, as the above figures indicate, has been doing so. As a result Great Britain was drained of gold; had to go off the gold standard; and now, because of failure to Germany to pay her other European nations, which are so heavily indebted to Great Britain, it is no longer possible for Britain to continue paying out to the United States when others are not, because they cannot pay her.

Furthermore, in the huge borrowings by Britain and other countries from the United States, the latter country did not actually lend them gold. What the United States Government did was to advance them credit whereby to buy food supplies, munitions, raw materials and manufactures of all kinds in the United States. In other words, the money was practically all spent in the United States in enormously high war prices for farm products, in war-time wages to workers, in war-time profits to manufacturers and people generally. The people of the United States prospered while Europe was impoverished.

With the ending of the war, and the necessity of paying off these huge credits, the United States Government demanded payment in gold. The United States, we repeat, did not lend gold but sold supplies of all kinds on credit; then they refused to take supplies back in repayment but demanded gold. In order to prevent repayment in supplies they raised their tariff to prohibitive heights and shut out foreign goods. In so doing they killed off the export trade of the debtor nations, thus making it still harder, in fact impossible, for them to pay.

Great Britain has never defaulted in payment of its obligations to any one at any time. Repudiation of obligations has never been countenanced by Great Britain, although it has been the victim of such practices by other countries, including several of the States of the United States. Britain has no desire to default now, and years ago offered to write off the debts owing to her if her own debts, created by her own war practices, were similarly written off. The world's financial and economic troubles today are not due to Great Britain, and had her advice and example been followed after 1918 there would be no trouble.

If the United States still remains adamant, if it refuses to cancel or very substantially reduce the amounts owing to that Government, and continues to insist on payment in gold, then, in our humble opinion, the debt to be taken by the British Government should be that: Payment in gold being impossible, and in view of the fact that the debt was created through the supply of goods produced or manufactured in the United States, thus creating employment and wealth in the United States, Great Britain should now offer to repay the United States by exactly the same method—that is, by supplying the United States with goods produced or manufactured in Great Britain, or through services, such as shipping which Britain can supply, thus providing employment for British unemployed, and producing wealth for Britain's over-taxed people and institutions.

Until the United States is prepared to accept such British credits in exchange for the credits extended to Britain, that is, to accept British goods and services in payment for the United States goods and services supplied, Great Britain, while not repudiating anything, would refrain from making any further payments in gold, and let the United States wait for any further settlement until that country is prepared to accept the same treatment from Britain, that is, in the hour of the world's extremity, the United States accorded to Britain. Could anything be fairer?

The Newest Shooting Club

Business Airs Criminals Practice Shooting At Cardboard Folliesmen

A shooting club for criminals where they could practice firing at cardboard figures of policemen was discovered by authorities at Buenos Aires with the arrest of one of the band. A letter from the woman proprietor of the club, found in the captured man's possession, revealed the location of the range.

On raiding the house the police found a 90 ft. underground shooting range and three gunmen astoundingly practicing their marksmanship. The range was lined with soundproof boarding and fitted with the latest appliances. Blue cardboard figures of policemen, both moving and stationary formed the targets. The scores of the shooter were kept in a card index.

Whistling Pigeons

Birds Used By Ontario Provincial Air Force

Travelers in the north woods of Ontario next summer may be astonished when they hear and see what they may take to be a new species of bird, and into their hands may pop pigeons of whistling swans and wild pigeons. They may see the birds, real pigeons, and hear the whistle, but it is two separate entities, joined it is true but only for a space and then to carry out an idea.

Next spring, after a period of training, teams of homing pigeons will be transported to various fire patrol points where communication by wireless is too difficult or impossible. Reports of fires, forced landings and important messages may be relayed by the use of these birds, to the base camp of the Provincial Air Force.

Thinks Canadian Fox Ranch Will Disappear

Fur Importers Predict Its Merging With General Fur

Complete disappearance of the fox ranch in Canada is predicted by Leon Chapal, managing director of Les Magasins Genuaux de Marche Francaise, fur importers. Mr. Chapal feels that fur farming will become merged with general farming, as there is not sufficient market to make it worth while for a man to devote his whole time to it, while it is still admirably well suited for farming.

Mr. Chapal was in Montreal en route to Prince Edward Island to make a survey of the fox ranching industry there. No competition exists between Russia and Canada, he said, as the furs produced by the two countries are of different types. Canada deals in silver fox and other furs of that variety, while Russia produces white fox and astrakhan.

All Canadian furs, except the small quantity bought in the Dominion, are purchased by Parisian interests. Mr. Chapal said. Even Americans are buying Canadian furs in Paris because his firm had sold more furs in August and September of this year than ever before in its 49 years of existence.

Boost Woolen Trade

Bellevue New Trade Agreement With Britain Will Be Beneficial

Both Canadian and British woolen manufacturers should enjoy greater business in the Canadian market. In the long run, as a result of the change in the textile tariffs affected by agreements at the Imperial Conference, declared H. Barrett, of Toronto, in his presidential address to the annual meeting of the Canadian Woolen and Knit Goods Manufacturers Association.

Addressing the members who had gathered from all parts of Canada, Mr. Barrett devoted the greater portion of his address to the Imperial Conference and its effects on the woolen industry.

"The improvement of Great Britain's position in the Canadian market," he said, "will be partly at the expense of employment in the Canadian mills and partly at the expense of mills in non-empire countries. But as the preferences on our primary products become effective the greater business in Canada for wool products will increase so that the total effect should be to increase business done in Canada by both Canadian and British mills."

CHAPTER 11.
A Northern Man
At Fort Endurance, in his big three-roomed cabin overlooking the rest of the post, Alan Baker was changing uniform and making himself regimental again, after a four-day patrol to a camp of drunken Hares.

Just turned thirty, tall and sinewy with an enviable reputation. With his shaken off the last vestige of an unhappy boyhood and his three harrowing years across. He was in the prime of virile and hardened manhood. Coming here to Endurance as a corporal seven years ago, with Jimmy Montgomery and Curt Spaulding as his constants, he had speedily showed his worth as a "northern man" and a detachment leader able to cope with frontier problems. To him it was like coming into his own. In his boyhood he had daydreamed of hunting big game; and here, at this post just beneath the Arctic circle, three daydreams had been realized, though in a strange way. For here he had hunted the biggest of big game—human game that had intelligence to match against his; that carried a rifle in its hands, and wore a belt gun, and must be captured alive, at risk of his own life.

During the years that he had been officer commanding here, he had built up an enviable reputation. With his gradually increasing pack of northern men he had successfully brought his big territory through Indian troubles and epidemics, and had smashed those lawless elements that came in with the oil-prospecting rubes farther south.

With a record like that and with Superintendent Williamson as his friend, Alan had expected to get his commission last fall when the post was voted to an independent. No one in all the Three Rivers country doubted that Baker would be the chosen man. To them, to Alan, the word came unexpectedly. A political appointee named Haskell, a newcomer to the Force, a worse than raw newcomer to the North, got the Inspectorship and command of this coveted detachment.

In these last months, Alan had been very thoughtful about his future. Here, at thirty, he found himself in a blue alley, a non-com on meager pay, with no hope of promotion. He had turned down the opportunity of going into a big mining company that was prospecting by planes through Athabasca country. He had refused half a dozen offers that held prospect of advancement and fine money. And then the Force that he had given such loyalty to had betrayed him. Worst of all, most stinging of all, he was forced to manage this territory still, straightening out the mistakes and enduring the aspersions of the man who had got the place he himself had earned.

As he brushed his sandy hair and dressed quickly, Alan's glance strayed down the slope to Mrs. Drimmold's flower garden. Elizabeth Spaulding, his fiancée, the sister of his dead partner, was there.

And Inspector Haskell was there with her. . . that blue and gold of his uniform, through the shrubbery. . . Alan wondered how many hours Haskell had spent with Elizabeth in these last four days.

Commanding all the other buildings at Fort Endurance, Alan's cabin, which he and Curt Spaulding had built for themselves one summer, was light and airy, homelike with fireplace, bookshelves, radio, flower pots on the ledges; and comfortable with good furniture which Jimmy Montgomery had turned over to him when Jimmy's young wife died. But in spite of its comforts after barracks life, the cabin was lonely to Alan. Eighteen months rolling by had not made him forget a dead partner. Every log and every nail in the building held some memory of Curt Spaulding; and Curt's picture, his chevrons, his empty gun, were poignant reminders of that fatal patrol a year ago last January.

When he finished dressing, Alan stepped over to a deep alcove, a sort of library and study—a tiny niche for his gun and books. Above the work table hung a shelf of dog-eared books and three pictures framed in carved walrus ivory. One was of Elizabeth Spaulding taken two years ago when she came down north to this Watersway country to live with Curt, her brother. Another was of Jimmy Montgomery in jaunty "walking-out" uniform, taken before Jimmy got his raw deal from headquarters and bought out of the Mounted.

The third was of Curt Spaulding. And that picture, slung with the chevrons and the belt-gun, hung more prominently than the other two. It thought, with that face always in front of him, Alan felt less lonely for his dead partner and could imagine Curt here in this cabin still.

"If I'd Repulse Him, He'd—He'd Take it Out on You!"

In Curt's death he had lost the best and truest friend he had ever had or ever would have; and he knew that through all the years of his life he would be lonely for that strong hand-clasp and a voice he once had known. From a pigeon-hole between two logs—a secret mailbox for himself and his hard-working men—Alan pulled out a scrawled note from Corporal Bill Handcock. He had to smile as he read, for the note was so like Bill.

"Somebody found an awfully dead monkey on a mud bar down river side the Big Alouksa. Alan. He probably got drowned in the breakup but I'm going down to see who he is. He won't be drawing treaty money by proxy for the next 20 years."

Alan sat down to write out the report of the dead patrol. But his thoughts strayed to Elizabeth in the distance, to Haskell, there with her. He knew that those lips that had been sent on, these trivial assignments that took him away for days at a time, were deliberate on Haskell's part, to get him out of the road. He angled at this gross abuse of authority, he thought. "If Haskell could come within a mile of managing this post, he'd frame me up and try to keep me in the bush altogether. Any person who'll wield his official power in a personal matter like this. . . They used to cut out a knight's spurs with an ax!"

There was little passion in Alan's emotions toward Elizabeth; but there was a sturdy loyalty and a certain blind idealization of her as a girl. In that fatal patrol he and she, had suffered a mutual loss of partner, brother. During the eighteen months since then, he had been her only friend here at Endurance, for even Mrs. Drummond, with whom she was living, did not like her. To have a girl so dependent upon him, not only for friendship but for maintenance itself, aroused a very tender and protective attitude in Alan.

But at times, deep in his heart, he was troubled about his engagement to Elizabeth. At times the two men told him that their marriage was going to be a terrible mistake. Something lacked in their betrothal; they weren't the deep and intimate friends they should be.

It shocked him to realize he was going into marriage with a girl knowing he did not love her wholeheartedly. In brooding hours, when he thought of another girl in his life, of Joyce MacMillan and his comradely intimacy with her, the old longing for that deeper and richer relation surged through him. He grew bitter at the secret powerful circumstances which had separated him from Joyce; which he kept locked within himself, telling no one, neither Joyce nor Elizabeth.

Father Claverly, alone, of all the people at Endurance, knew that there was something back of that engagement which Alan had kept to himself—some hidden reason, some unalterable fact that would explain it. At first he had thought that the profound shock of a partner's death had caused Alan to turn to Elizabeth; but with the passing months he became convinced the reason was not that. It was something deeper and more lasting.

With infinite sorrow Father Claverly had seen Alan's fine comradship with Joyce break up and had watched the engagement come about. He saw that Elizabeth was a wise, cool-headed girl, very clever, at managing relationships for her own ends. In the good priest's opinion the marriage of this cool-headed, calculating girl to a man so sincere and warm-hearted, would be a sorry, sorry pair.

When Elizabeth came in the door, she merely nodded to Alan's warm greeting. In her precise tones she said:

"I want to talk to you, Alan, about something very important of us both. Unless you're too busy. . ."

Her rebuff hurt Alan. Her coldness, the lack of any passion, were always bewildering to him.

Waiting, painfully aware he could never answer her arguments, he closed the window at the river and shut himself in his study.

Elizabeth saw the craft, too. But she glanced only once at it, entirely uninterested. Pacing the parlor, she aimed, map surveys, treaty matters, to be stamped, bickering Indians—all this bored her, now that the novelty of it had worn off.

She loved Alan—with reservations. She admired his natural-born leadership over other men; admired his ruggedness, his expert in his relation to Haskell's lack of it. In their life together Alan would always be loyal to her; she could always depend upon Alan. And he could get out of what she wanted of life. Much better that he himself did, he realized he had qualities that would take him far in any other profession: a good intellect, ambition, the ability to work hard, and most valuable of all—a rare capacity for friendship.

All in all, Elizabeth felt that if only he did not choose to bury himself here in this northern backwoods Alan Baker was by far the likeliest man, of the four or five she had known well, to lift her out of genteel poverty to a more agreeable place of life.

Dorman Knew His Job
The show had started, and Mr. and Mrs. Barry, invited guests of the great actor, were seated in the balcony by the obdurate Dorman. "But," they protested, "we are the Barrys!" "Sir and madam," spoke the guardian of the door, whose knowledge of slang was ace-high, "you couldn't get in here without tickets even if you were the cat's whiskers!"

Many mine strikes have been reported in Scotland this year.

IT'S LIVER THAT MAKES YOU FEEL SO WRETHCHED

Wake up your Liver
—No Calomel necessary
For you to feel healthy, bright and energetic, your liver must be in good condition. It is the liver that makes you feel so wretched when it is out of order. It is the liver that makes you feel so tired when you are overworked. It is the liver that makes you feel so sick when you are indigestible. It is the liver that makes you feel so weak when you are anemic. It is the liver that makes you feel so nervous when you are overexcited. It is the liver that makes you feel so depressed when you are discouraged. It is the liver that makes you feel so lonely when you are alone. HARDWARE

Arrowwood - Alberta

Lincoln had been shot the night previous. And doing a little investigating, we found at least one other whose memory went back to that event.

But still more in-credibly was the fact that he had a copy of the newspaper which gave the first account of the event. Soon every one was reading the odd print and funny advertisements as well as the details regarding the President's death. And that paper today is in Arrowwood.
Surely it will pass beyond mere family interest and become a village treasure. For the real treasures of a community are not the publicly owned assets as much as those individually owned by public-minded citizens.

Milk

We today have a better chance to live longer and to be healthy than had the people of any former time. We know more about disease, and so we are able either to prevent or to cure many diseases which used to take a heavy toll of human lives. Better still, we know a great deal more about how to keep our bodies healthy, so that we may be happier and more useful throughout our lives. We understand, for example, that a proper diet makes for good health. We know that we must consume certain substances if our bodies are to grow properly, and if our bones, teeth and other parts are to be strong. We have learned that the lack of these substances means loss of health and, perhaps, disease. We know that these substances which are essential to health are found abundantly in certain foods, notably in milk and milk products. This is why intelligent people use a large quantity of milk in their diet.

Milk has been used by mankind for centuries. For a time milk was feared by city dealers because it was often so dirty and adulterated as to cause a great deal of illness. The present century, through regular systems of inspection and pasteurization, has seen provided safe supplies, and milk has taken its rightful place in the diet of those who live in towns and cities as well as those who are country dwellers.
The milk drinking habit is a sign of civilization. To drink milk is to make use of our knowledge concerning its value.

Milk should be a regular part of the diet of both young and old.

Milk is our most important single food. During years of growth, the regular use of milk provides the child with a sufficient quantity of calcium (lime) to build healthy, strong teeth and bones. Even when grown up, complete, we require milk for the nourishment of our bodies.

The average normal healthy person should eat a wide variety of foods. A varied diet ensures a sufficiency of the substances which are essential to keep the body in a condition of health. Milk and milk products contain many of these substances, and so they should be used freely and regularly.

To Halt Unemployment March

view of this, the government has issued the following statement:

"The government has not refused to meet delegations from the unemployed in Edmonton and is equally ready to meet any delegation in Calgary or other points in the province, through ministers or properly accredited representatives of the government. This being the case, there is no need whatever for any concentration under Edmonton, and instructions have been issued by the government to the Canadian Mounted Police to take adequate measures to stop any such attempt.

"The government takes this method of notifying all interested organizations that no such concentration will be permitted and that should any unemployed from other parts of the province succeed in reaching Edmonton, under no circumstances will relief be given here nor will any provision be made by the government for the return to the place from which they have come.

"All municipalities are being asked to co-operate with the government to this end, so that anyone applying for sustenance from any delegates who may come from other parts of the province will be treated in a similar manner."

Ours is a Favored Land

We have only to look a short distance to the west or north to find people wading in snow knee deep and their threshing not nearly completed. Then take a look to the east of us for a short distance and their crops are little or nothing, while in the famous Arrow-wood district they are completing the harvesting of a bumper crop. We still maintain that if we keep our pump dry we will be away to a good start when con-
